

USING THE HUMAN RIGHTS FRAMEWORK FOR RACIAL JUSTICE

A conversation with Justin Hansford

After Michael Brown's murder in Ferguson, Missouri, Justin Hansford helped Brown family members bring their appeal for justice to the United Nations. This conversation brings together Black community leaders, advocates, and educators to discuss this effort and understand how Professor Hansford views social movements and the law means of social transformation.

Justin Hansford is Professor of Law at Howard University and Executive Director of the Thurgood Marshall Civil Rights Center. He is visiting Pittsburgh as part of a "listening tour" in preparation for the inaugural meeting of the new United Nations Permanent Forum of People of African Descent (UNPFPAD) in early December.
