Justin Hansford is Professor of Law at Howard University, Executive Director of the Thurgood Marshall Civil Rights Center, Professor Hansford is visiting Pittsburgh as part of a “listening tour” in preparation for the inaugural meeting of the new United Nations Permanent Forum of People of African Descent (UNPFAD).. in early December.

Pitt sponsors: GSPIA; Global Studies Center; World History Center; School of Education; Center for Civil Rights and Racial Justice; Pitt Schools of Health Sciences Office of Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion; Departments of Africana Studies, English, Political Science, and Sociology; Center for Race and Social Problems.

After Michael Brown’s murder in Ferguson, Missouri, Justin Hansford helped Brown family members bring their appeal for justice to the United Nations. This conversation brings together Black community leaders, advocates, and educators to discuss this effort and understand how Professor Hansford views social movements and the law means of social transformation.
